

A KITCHEN-TABLE GUIDE

Essential Spanish

For English-speaking retirees living in Panama

You don't need to be fluent. You need to be understood.

Not a textbook. A practical booklet you can keep on the table, open at the farmacia, and sneak a look at in the taxi.

Latin American Spanish · Usted-friendly · Panama examples

Keep it close. Use what you need. Nobody is giving you a quiz.

CONTENTS

What's inside

Skip around. The booklet is built for looking things up, not for reading cover to cover.

Start here	How to use this booklet	3
Chapter 1	Fifteen sentences that do a lot of work	4
Chapter 2	How Spanish sounds	5
Chapter 3	El, la, and the idea of gender	7
Chapter 4	Describing things	9
Chapter 5	I, you, we	11
Chapter 6	Two ways to say “to be”	12
Chapter 7	Right now: the present tense	14
Chapter 8	The verbs you'll live on	16
Chapter 9	I like it — the gustar twist	18
Chapter 10	Questions, “no,” and the magic five	19
Chapter 11	Yesterday, without the headache	21
Chapter 12	Please do this: commands	23
Chapter 13	Por and para — the short version	24
Chapter 14	Where things are	26
Chapter 15	Numbers, money, and time	27
Chapter 16	Little words that do a lot of work	29
Chapter 17	Panama Spanish, the local layer	30
Chapter 18	Phrasebook for a regular week	31
Keep this page	Cheat sheets	36
Pocket page	If you only carry one page	37

START HERE

How to use this booklet

This is not a school textbook. It is a kitchen-table guide for real life in Panama: the farmacia, the clinic, the mercado, the taxi, and the neighbor who waters your plants when you fly home to see the grandkids.

Spanish looks like a mountain from far away. Up close, you only need a few paths. This booklet is those paths. Skip around. Dog-ear the pages you actually use. Nobody is giving you a quiz.

A simple way to use it

- 1 Skim the first half once so the ideas sound familiar.
- 2 Save the web version on your phone. Print the phrase pages if you like paper.
- 3 When you get stuck, flip to the pattern you need — not the whole book.
- 4 Say the sentences out loud. Spanish gets friendlier once your mouth has practiced it.

If you remember nothing else

Smile. Say por favor and gracias. Use usted with people you don't know well. And the magic phrase: Más despacio, por favor. — A little slower, please.

Panama Spanish, in one paragraph

People here speak Latin American Spanish. They do not use Spain's vosotros. The safe word for “you” with strangers, shopkeepers, doctors, and officials is usted. Friends may switch to tú — follow their lead. And yes, the money is already in dollars. You can skip that particular headache.

What actually trips English speakers

The splits English does not make are the ones that last: two ways to say “to be” (especially estar), two past tenses, and little words like lo and la. Mixing up ser and estar, or using the wrong past, is what most often confuses a listener. A wrong el or la almost never does.

Mistakes are allowed. Panamanians deal with visitors from everywhere, and a kind attempt almost always beats perfect silence. If someone answers you in English, take the help. You can still sneak in a gracias on the way out.

CHAPTER 1

Fifteen sentences that do a lot of work

If you only learn one page, make it this one. These sentences will get you through greetings, shops, confusion, and a polite goodbye.

Spanish	How it sounds	English
Hola. Buenos días.	OH-lah. BWEH-nohs DEE-ahs	Hi. Good morning.
¿Cómo está usted?	KOH-moh es-TAH oos-TED	How are you? (polite)
Me llamo...	meh YAH-moh	My name is...
Mucho gusto.	MOO-choh GOO-stoh	Nice to meet you.
No hablo español muy bien.	no AH-bloh es-pah-NYOL mwee BYEN	I don't speak Spanish very well.
¿Habla inglés?	AH-blah een-GLEHS	Do you speak English?
Más despacio, por favor.	MAHS des-PAH-syoh por fah-VOR	A little slower, please.
No entiendo.	no en-TYEN-doh	I don't understand.
¿Puede repetir, por favor?	PWEH-deh reh-peh-TEER	Can you repeat that, please?
¿Me puede ayudar?	meh PWEH-deh ah-yoo-DAR	Can you help me?
¿Cuánto cuesta?	KWAHN-toh KWEH-stah	How much does it cost?
Quiero esto, por favor.	KYEH-roh ES-toh por fah-VOR	I want this, please.
¿Dónde está el baño?	DOHN-deh es-TAH el BAH-nyoh	Where is the bathroom?
Me duele aquí.	meh DWEH-leh ah-KEE	It hurts here. (point)
Gracias. Que le vaya bien.	GRAH-syahs. keh leh VAH-yah BYEN	Thank you. Take care.

Pointing is a strategy

Hold up the thing, the bottle, the address on your phone. Esto, por favor (this, please) plus a finger will carry you farther than a perfect verb chart.

CHAPTER 2

How Spanish sounds

Here is the best news in this whole booklet: Spanish is mostly phonetic. Once the sounds are in your ear, you can read a menu out loud and be close enough.

The five vowels never really change

English vowels wander all over the place. Spanish vowels stay home. Learn these five and a lot of words suddenly look readable.

Letter	Say it like	Example
a	ah in father	casa, Panamá
e	eh in bet (clear, not “ay”)	café, mesa
i	ee in machine	sí, vino
o	oh in go, but shorter	hola, doctor
u	oo in moon	tú, uno

The consonants that surprise English speakers

Letter	What to do	Example
h	Always silent.	hola = OH-lah
j	A strong h, from the throat.	José, jardín
ll / y	In Panama, both sound like y in yes.	calle, playa
ñ	ny, as in canyon.	mañana, señor
r	A quick tap (like the tt in butter, American-style).	pero, caro
rr	A trill. Do your best. People will still understand you.	perro, arroz
v / b	Almost the same sound. Don't stress the difference.	vaca, banco qu	A k sound. The u is silent.	qué, quiero
c + e/i, or z	An s sound in Panama (not the Spanish lisp).	cielo, cerveza
g + e/i	Same raspy h as j.	gente, giro

Two extra spelling notes: gue and gui have a silent u (guitarra). And qué, cuál, cómo, dónde, cuándo, quién take an accent when they are questions.

Where the stress goes

- If there is an accent mark, stress that syllable: café, teléfono, Panamá.
- No accent, and the word ends in a vowel, n, or s? Stress the second-to-last syllable: casa, hablan, lunes.
- No accent, and it ends in any other consonant? Stress the last syllable: doctor, hotel, español.

Skip the rolled r if you have to

The sound that marks you as English is usually the vowels — keep them short and pure, not “no-uh” or “day-ee.” A weak rolled rr almost never blocks meaning. A swallowed vowel sometimes does.

What your ear will notice here

Along the coast, a final s can sound soft or almost disappear. Más o menos might sound like “mah o meno.” You did not go deaf. That is just Panama talking — and it can hide plurals when you listen. In the highlands (Boquete, Volcán, El Valle) speech is often a bit clearer.

CHAPTER 3

El, la, and the idea of gender

Every Spanish noun is masculine or feminine. There is no secret logic that makes a table masculine and a chair feminine. Learn the little word in front with the noun, the way you learned “a pair of scissors.” English speakers slip here for years — and listeners still understand them.

	Masculine	Feminine
the	el (plural: los)	la (plural: las)
a / an	un (plural: unos)	una (plural: unas)

A few handy patterns — not rules you must defend in court:

- Words ending in -o are usually masculine: el banco, el mercado, el baño.
- Words ending in -a are usually feminine: la casa, la farmacia, la cuenta.
- Words ending in -ción, -sión, -dad, -tad are feminine: la dirección, la ciudad.
- When in doubt, English speakers default to masculine. The slips that last are almost always on feminine words. Learn la with those nouns and you cut the problem in half.

Professions: el and la tell you who

Some job words don't change at all. The little word in front is the gender: el for a man, la for a woman. This is the usual pattern for words ending in -ista.

el dentista / la dentista	the dentist (a man / a woman)
el receptionista / la receptionista	the receptionist
el especialista / la especialista	the specialist

Other jobs do change the ending: el médico / la médica, el vecino / la vecina. Either way, listen for el or la — that is who they are.

Learn these with the article

These are the ones that do not follow the -o / -a hint. Photograph this list.

Say it this way	Why it tricks you el día	ends in -a, still masculine el mapa	ends in -a, still masculine el problema / el clima	the -ma words are usually masculine el sistema / el programa	same -ma pattern
el agua	feminine, but takes el so you don't get “la agua”
la mano	ends in -o, still feminine la foto / la radio / la moto	short for fotografía, etc. — still feminine el sofá	looks like -a; masculine

Making words plural

If it ends in...	Do this	Example
a vowel	add s	casa to casas, taxi to taxis
a consonant	add es	doctor to doctores, hotel to hoteles
z	change z to c, add es	lápiz to lápices

You'll use these every week

el médico / la médica	the doctor
la clínica / el hospital	the clinic / the hospital
la farmacia	the pharmacy
el mercado / el supermercado	the market / the supermarket
la cuenta	the bill (or the account) el dinero / la plata	money (plata is the casual word)
el vecino / la vecina	the neighbor el apartamento / la casa	the apartment / the house
la luz / el agua / el internet	the power / the water / the internet
el aire (acondicionado)	the air conditioning

Don't wait for perfect gender

If you say el farmacia by accident, the pharmacist will still sell you the aspirin. Listeners almost never get lost over a wrong el or la. Get the noun out. Gender can catch up later.

CHAPTER 4

Describing things

Adjectives have to match the noun: masculine or feminine, singular or plural. And they usually come after the noun, which feels backwards until it doesn't.

una casa grande	a big house
un café bueno	a good coffee
las islas bonitas	the pretty islands
el banco está cerrado	the bank is closed

- Ends in -o: alto (masculine), alta (feminine), altos / altas (plural).
- Ends in -e or a consonant: same word for masculine and feminine. Only the plural changes: grande / grandes, fácil / fáciles.

Spanish	English
bueno / buena	good
malo / mala	bad
grande	big
pequeño / pequeña	small
caro / cara	expensive
barato / barata	cheap
cerca / lejos	near / far
caliente / frío	hot / cold
abierto / cerrado	open / closed
ocupado / libre	busy or occupied / free rico / rica	delicious (food) or rich
limpio / sucio	clean / dirty

Bueno likes to jump in front

You'll hear un buen médico and un mal día. Bueno and malo often drop the -o and hop in front of a masculine noun. Copy what you hear.

CHAPTER 5

I, you, we

Spanish has more words for “you” than English. In Panama the map is simpler than in Spain, and usted will keep you out of trouble.

Spanish	English	When to use it
yo	I	Talking about yourself. Often dropped: Hablo inglés.
tú	you (friendly)	Friends, once they use tú with you.
usted	you (polite)	Your default. Shops, clinics, new people, anyone older.
él / ella	he / she	About someone else.
nosotros / nosotras	we	Nosotras if the group is all women.
ustedes	you all	Any group. Panama does not use vosotros.
ellos / ellas	they	Ellas if the group is all women.

Usted is not stiff here

In some countries usted can sound very formal. In Panama it is everyday respect. Using it with a cashier or a doctor is not cold — it is polite. If a neighbor switches to tú, you can switch too.

You will notice people skip yo and tú a lot. The verb ending already says who is doing the action. Tengo una cita is enough. You do not need Yo tengo una cita unless you want to emphasize I.

This, that, these, those

Near you	A little farther	A thing / idea
este / esta (this)	ese / esa (that)	esto (this thing)
estos / estas (these)	esos / esas (those)	eso (that thing)

¿Cuánto cuesta esto?	How much is this?
Quiero esa, por favor.	I want that one, please.
Estos son mis medicamentos.	These are my medicines.

CHAPTER 6

Two ways to say “to be”

English has one “to be.” Spanish has two: ser and estar. English speakers grab ser first and overuse it for years. The work is estar — especially for how someone feels and whether something is open, closed, ready, or broken.

Ser — what something is (this one comes naturally)

Use ser for identity, origin, occupation, time, dates, and the stuff something is made of. If it answers “what is it?” or “who is it?”, you probably want ser.

Soy de Canadá. / Soy de los Estados Unidos.	I'm from Canada. / I'm from the United States.
Soy jubilado / jubilada.	I'm retired. (that's who you are)
Ella es médica.	She is a doctor.
Somos vecinos.	We're neighbors.
Es el martes. / Son las tres.	It's Tuesday. / It's three o'clock.
El anillo es de oro.	The ring is made of gold.
¿Quién es? — Es el plomero.	Who is it? — It's the plumber.

Estar — how or where something is (practice this one)

Location is always estar, even if the place never moves: Panamá está en Centroamérica. Feelings, health, and “how is it right now?” are estar too. That last group is the one English speakers keep handing to ser by accident.

Estoy en David. / Estamos en la capital.	I'm in David. / We're in Panama City.
¿Cómo está usted? — Estoy bien.	How are you? — I'm well.
Estoy cansado / cansada. Estoy enfermo / enferma.	I'm tired. I'm sick.
El banco está cerrado. La farmacia está abierta.	The bank is closed. The pharmacy is open.
El baño está ocupado. / Está listo.	The bathroom is occupied. / It's ready.
La sopa está caliente. El aire no está frío.	The soup is hot (right now). The A/C isn't cold.
Está lloviendo.	It's raining.

The mix-up that actually confuses people

A wrong el or la rarely blocks meaning. Picking the wrong “to be” often does. Soy enfermo sounds like “I am a sick person by nature.” Estoy enfermo is “I'm sick (right now).” Soy jubilado is your identity. Location, mood, open/closed: estar.

ser	estar
soy	estoy
eres (tú) / es (usted, él, ella)	estás / está
somos	estamos
son (ustedes, ellos, ellas)	están

A pocket rule

Ser = what it is. Estar = how or where it is right now. If you can add “at the moment” in English, try estar.

Hay — there is / there are

One more cousin: hay (sounds like “eye”). It means there is or there are. It does not change for plural. Mixing up hay with es or está is another mix-up listeners actually feel.

Hay un banco cerca.	There is a bank nearby.
¿Hay una farmacia por aquí?	Is there a pharmacy around here?
No hay problema.	No problem. (you'll hear this all day)
Hay mucha gente.	There are a lot of people.

Hay vs. está

Hay un banco en la esquina introduces it — there is a bank. El banco está en la esquina locates a bank you both already have in mind. If you are asking whether something exists nearby, start with ¿Hay...?

CHAPTER 7

Right now: the present tense

If you get comfortable in the present, you can handle most of a regular day. Tomorrow and yesterday can piggyback on it, as you'll see in a few chapters.

Spanish verbs in the dictionary end in -ar, -er, or -ir. You knock that ending off and add a new one. Usted uses the same ending as he/she. Ustedes uses the same ending as they. That cuts the chart almost in half.

hablar — to speak

Person	Form
yo	hablo
tú	hablas
usted / él / ella	habla
nosotros	hablamos
ustedes / ellos / ellas	hablan

comer — to eat • vivir — to live

Person	comer	vivir
yo	como	vivo
tú	comes	vives
usted / él / ella	come	vive
nosotros	comemos	vivimos
ustedes / ellos	comen	viven

Hablo un poco de español.	I speak a little Spanish.
¿Habla inglés?	Do you speak English? (usted)
Vivimos en Coronado.	We live in Coronado.
Ellos comen a las dos.	They eat at two.

The present also covers things you do in general, not only this second: Tomo café por la mañana. I drink coffee in the morning.

Need a verb in a hurry?

You can often skip conjugating altogether: Quiero + a verb, Necesito + a verb, Voy a + a verb. Chapter 10 is built on that trick.

CHAPTER 8

The verbs you'll live on

A short list of slightly irregular verbs does more daily work than twenty perfectly regular ones. Learn these in the present and you will hear them everywhere.

Infinitive	yo	usted / él / ella	nosotros	ustedes
ser (to be)	soy	es	somos	son
estar (to be)	estoy	está	estamos	están
ir (to go)	voy	va	vamos	van
tener (to have)	tengo	tiene	tenemos	tienen
hacer (to do / make)	hago	hace	hacemos	hacen
poder (to be able / can)	puedo	puede	podemos	pueden
querer (to want)	quiero	quiere	queremos	quieren
decir (to say / tell)	digo	dice	decimos	dicen
venir (to come)	vengo	viene	venimos	vienen
dar (to give)	doy	da	damos	dan
ver (to see)	veo	ve	vemos	ven
saber (to know a fact)	sé	sabe	sabemos	saben

The tú forms (if a friend is using tú with you) usually look like the usted form plus an s: vas, tienes, puedes, quieres. Exceptions you already know: eres, estás.

Tener is bigger than “to have”

English says “I am hungry.” Spanish says “I have hunger.” Copy these as chunks.

Tengo hambre. / Tengo sed.	I'm hungry. / I'm thirsty.
Tengo calor. / Tengo frío.	I'm hot. / I'm cold.
Tengo sueño.	I'm sleepy.
Tengo X años.	I am X years old.
Tengo una cita a las diez.	I have an appointment at ten.
¿Tiene cambio?	Do you have change?

Saber vs. conocer — two kinds of knowing

¿Sabe dónde está el hospital?	Do you know where the hospital is? (a fact)
No sé.	I don't know.
¿Conoce a un buen dentista?	Do you know a good dentist? (are you familiar with one)
Conocemos Boquete.	We know Boquete. (we've been there)

Hace calor — and then some

Weather uses hacer: Hace calor. Hace sol. Está lloviendo. In Panama, verano is the dry season (roughly December to April) and invierno is the rainy season. Nobody here is talking about snow.

CHAPTER 9

I like it — the gustar twist

Gustar is not “I like.” It is closer to “it is pleasing to me.” That is why the verb agrees with the thing you like, not with you. Weird for about a week. Then it clicks.

Me gusta el café.	I like coffee. (one thing: gusta)
Me gustan las empanadas.	I like empanadas. (plural: gustan)
No me gusta el ruido.	I don't like the noise.
¿Le gusta el pescado?	Do you like fish? (usted)
Nos gusta Panamá.	We like Panama.

Word	English
me	to me
te	to you (tú)
le	to you (usted) / to him / to her
nos	to us
les	to you all / to them

Want to make it extra clear? Add a phrase up front: A mí me gusta... A usted le gusta... You'll hear that a lot when people contrast tastes.

Don't say yo gusto

English wants “I like.” Spanish will not take Yo gusto el café. Start with me: Me gusta el café. Same family: Me duele aquí. Me encanta este lugar. Me falta dinero.

Love it? Same pattern: Me encanta este lugar. Me encantan las islas. That is the friendly way to say “I love it” about food, towns, and weather — not usually about people. For people, Quiero mucho a... is safer.

CHAPTER 10

Questions, “no,” and the magic five

You can live a long time on questions, a well-placed no, and five little helper verbs. This chapter is the Swiss Army knife.

Asking questions

Written Spanish uses two question marks: ¿ ... ? Spoken Spanish often just uses tone. You can turn many statements into questions by lifting your voice: ¿Habla inglés?

Word	English	Try this
qué	what	¿Qué es esto?
quién	who	¿Quién es?
dónde	where	¿Dónde está el baño?
cuándo	when	¿Cuándo abre?
cómo	how	¿Cómo está usted?
cuánto / cuánta	how much	¿Cuánto cuesta?
cuántos / cuántas	how many	¿Cuántos años tiene?
por qué	why	¿Por qué está cerrado?
cuál	which / what (choice)	¿Cuál es su dirección?
a qué hora	at what time	¿A qué hora es la cita?

Saying no

Put no right before the verb: No hablo español muy bien. Double negatives are correct, not sloppy: No tengo nada. (I don't have anything.) No hay nadie. (There's no one.)

No entiendo.	I don't understand.
No sé.	I don't know.
No, gracias.	No, thank you.
Todavía no.	Not yet.

The magic five: want, can, need, have to, going to Park a verb in its dictionary form after one of these, and you can talk about almost any action without conjugating the second verb. This is the cheat that fluent-looking beginners actually use.

Pattern	Example	English
Quiero + verb	Quiero pagar.	I want to pay.
Puedo / ¿Puede...?	¿Puede ayudarme?	Can you help me?
Necesito + verb	Necesito hablar con el médico.	I need to talk to the doctor.
Tengo que + verb	Tengo que ir al banco.	I have to go to the bank.
Voy a + verb	Voy a llamar mañana.	I'm going to call tomorrow.

Quiero reservar una mesa.	I want to reserve a table.
No puedo caminar mucho.	I can't walk very far.
Necesito un taxi.	I need a taxi.
Tenemos que esperar.	We have to wait.
Vamos a comer aquí.	We're going to eat here.
¿Me puede escribir eso, por favor?	Can you write that down for me, please?

Your future tense, for now

Spanish has a “real” future tense (hablaré, irá). You can ignore it for months. Voy a... is what people actually say about later today, tomorrow, and next Tuesday.

CHAPTER 11

Yesterday, without the headache

Spanish has two everyday past tenses. English has one. That is why this chapter lasts for years. You need a snapshot version: one past for finished events, one past for background and “used to.” The English trap is using the snapshot past for both.

The snapshot: something finished

Use this when the thing happened and it's done. Yesterday. This morning. Last Tuesday. A completed trip to the clinic.

Ayer fui al médico.	Yesterday I went to the doctor.
Comí pescado.	I ate fish.
Pagamos en efectivo.	We paid in cash.
¿Qué pasó?	What happened?

A few high-value “I / he-she-you” forms:

Verb	yo	usted / él / ella
ir / ser (to go / to be)	fui	fue
estar	estuve	estuvo
tener	tuve	tuvo
hacer	hice	hizo
decir	dije	dijo
venir	vine	vino
ver	vi	vio
poder	pude	pudo
dar	di	dio
hablar (regular -ar)	hablé	habló
comer (regular -er)	comí	comió

The background: how things were

Use this for weather, age, feelings, what something used to be like, or what was going on around the main event.

Hacía mucho calor.	It was really hot.
Cuando vivíamos en Florida...	When we used to live in Florida...
Era médico.	He was a doctor. (that was his profession)
Estaba cansada.	She was tired.
Había mucha gente.	There were a lot of people.

Useful background forms	English
era / eran	was / were (ser)
estaba / estaban	was / were (estar)
había	there was / there were tenía	had / used to have hacía	was making / weather was
iba	was going / used to go
vivía	used to live / was living

The English trap

If you can add “used to” or “was ...-ing” in English, do not use the snapshot past. Comí pescado is “I ate fish (and I was done).” Comía pescado is “I used to eat fish / I was eating fish.” English speakers keep putting the snapshot where the background belongs. Listeners feel that one.

Ayer comí pescado.	Yesterday I ate fish. (done)
Cuando vivía en Florida, comía pescado.	When I lived in Florida, I used to eat fish.
Fui al médico el martes.	I went to the doctor on Tuesday. (that visit)
Iba al médico cada mes.	I used to go to the doctor every month.

If you freeze, tell the story in two strokes

Background first, snapshot second: Estaba en la casa y se fue la luz. I was at the house and the power went out. That pattern will carry a lot of stories.

CHAPTER 12

Please do this: commands

You don't need the full command system. You need a short list for clinics, shops, and friends. Use the usted column with people you don't know well. Use the tú column once someone is using tú with you.

Formal (usted)	Informal (tú)	English
Deme..., por favor.	Dame..., por favor.	Give me..., please.
Tráigame la cuenta.	Tráeme la cuenta.	Bring me the bill.
Ayúdeme, por favor.	Ayúdame, por favor.	Help me, please.
Espere un momento.	Espera un momento.	Wait a moment.
Pase, por favor.	Pasa, por favor.	Come in, please.
Sígame, por favor.	Sígueme, por favor.	Follow me, please.
Hable más despacio.	Habla más despacio.	Speak more slowly.
Escríballo, por favor.	Escríbelo, por favor.	Write it down, please.
Perdóneme.	Perdóname.	Excuse me / forgive me.
Dígame.	Dime.	Tell me.

You'll hear these said to you:

Formal (usted)	Informal (tú)	English
Tome asiento.	Toma asiento.	Have a seat.
Firme aquí.	Firma aquí.	Sign here.
Espere aquí.	Espera aquí.	Wait here.
Pase a la caja.	Pasa a la caja.	Go to the cashier.
No fume.	No fumes.	No smoking. / Don't smoke.
Siéntese, por favor.	Siéntate, por favor.	Please sit down.

How they're built, if you're curious

Usted: start with the yo form in the present, drop the -o, and add the “opposite” vowel — hablo to hable, como to coma, vivo to viva. Rebels: tenga, venga, diga, haga, ponga, vaya, sea, esté, dé. Tú yes-commands are usually the he/she present: habla, come, vive. Rebels: di, haz, ve, pon, sal, sé, ten, ven. Tú no-commands look like usted plus an s: no fumes, no hables.

Regálame un vaso de agua

You will hear regalar used for “hand me / give me,” not only for birthday presents. ¿Me regala una bolsa? is a normal way to ask for a bag at the checkout. With a friend: Regálame una bolsa. They are not asking you to donate one.

CHAPTER 13

Por and para — the short version

Both can translate as “for,” which is unhelpful. You do not need every textbook list. You need two jobs for para and three jobs for por.

Para — purpose, destination, deadline, recipient

Este café es para usted.	This coffee is for you.
Salimos para Boquete el viernes.	We're leaving for Boquete on Friday.
Lo necesito para mañana.	I need it by tomorrow.
Estudio para hablar mejor.	I study in order to speak better.

Por — reason, duration, through, exchange

Gracias por su ayuda.	Thank you for your help.
Caminamos por la playa.	We walked along the beach.
Estuve allí por tres días.	I was there for three days.
Pagué diez dólares por esto.	I paid ten dollars for this.
Por la mañana / por la tarde / por la noche	in the morning / afternoon / evening

Stuck?

If it means “in order to,” “by this date,” “headed to,” or “this is for that person,” try para. If it means “because of,” “through,” “for a stretch of time,” or “in exchange for,” try por. And memorize por favor as a chunk. Do not take it apart.

CHAPTER 14

Where things are

Location is estar plus a little preposition. Learn the cluster below and you can follow directions — or give them with your hands.

Spanish	English
en	in / on / at
a	to / at (with motion: ir a)
de	of / from
con / sin	with / without cerca de / lejos de	near / far from al lado de	next to
delante de / detrás de	in front of / behind encima de / debajo de	on top of / under dentro de / fuera de	inside / outside entre	between
a la derecha / a la izquierda	to the right / to the left
todo recto / derecho	straight ahead

Two fusions you'll see constantly: a + el = al (Voy al banco) and de + el = del (cerca del hospital). A la and de la stay as two words.

El banco está al lado del supermercado.	The bank is next to the supermarket.
Vivo cerca de la playa.	I live near the beach.
Está a dos cuadras.	It's two blocks away.
Gire a la derecha.	Turn right.
Venimos de la capital.	We came from Panama City.

The personal “a” — when the object is a person

English speakers drop this constantly. It is a tiny a before a person (or a pet you treat like a person). Things do not get it. People will still understand you without it. Copy it when you can and you will sound less like a textbook in reverse.

Busco a mi esposa.	I'm looking for my wife.
Busco un restaurante.	I'm looking for a restaurant. (a thing — no a)
¿Conoce a un buen dentista?	Do you know a good dentist?
Llamo a María.	I'm calling María.
Veo el banco.	I see the bank. (a thing — no a)
Quiero mucho a mi familia.	I love my family a lot.

CHAPTER 15

Numbers, money, and time

This is the chapter you will use at the caja, the clinic window, and the taxi door. Panama uses U.S. dollars, so the only conversion is the words.

Numbers you actually need

0 cero	1 uno	2 dos	3 tres
4 cuatro	5 cinco	6 seis	7 siete
8 ocho	9 nueve	10 diez	11 once
12 doce	13 trece	14 catorce	15 quince
16 dieciséis	17 diecisiete	18 dieciocho	19 diecinueve
20 veinte	21 veintiuno	22 veintidós	30 treinta
40 cuarenta	50 cincuenta	60 sesenta	70 setenta
80 ochenta	90 noventa	100 cien	101 ciento uno
200 doscientos	500 quinientos	1,000 mil	1,000,000 un millón

- Uno becomes un before a masculine noun: un dólar. Una before feminine: una caja.
- 200–900 change for gender: doscientos dólares, doscientas cajas.
- Years: 2026 is dos mil veintiséis.

Money

¿Cuánto cuesta? / ¿Cuánto es?	How much does it cost? / How much is it?
¿A cómo?	How much each? (at markets)
Está muy caro.	That's very expensive.
¿Me puede hacer un precio?	Can you do a better price?
La cuenta, por favor.	The bill, please.
¿Tiene cambio? / el vuelto	Do you have change? / the change you get back
en efectivo / con tarjeta	in cash / by card
¿Aceptan tarjeta?	Do you take cards?

Dollars, balboas, and the caja

Paper money is the U.S. dollar. Local coins are often called balboas, but they are worth the same as U.S. coins. La caja is the cashier. La cola is the line. Tipping is modest — ten percent at sit-down restaurants is a kind default if service is not already included.

What time is it?

¿Qué hora es?	What time is it?
Es la una.	It's one o'clock. (la una is singular)
Son las dos.	It's two o'clock.
Son las tres y media.	It's 3:30.
Son las cuatro y cuarto.	It's 4:15.
Son las diez menos diez.	It's 9:50. (ten to ten) a las nueve de la mañana	at 9:00 a.m.
a las siete de la noche	at 7:00 p.m.

Days: lunes, martes, miércoles, jueves, viernes, sábado, domingo. They are not capitalized. El lunes means on Monday; los lunes means on Mondays in general.

Months: enero, febrero, marzo, abril, mayo, junio, julio, agosto, septiembre, octubre, noviembre, diciembre. Dates go day first: el 9 de septiembre.

CHAPTER 16

Little words that do a lot of work

These are the glue. If you recognize them, whole sentences stop being a blur.

Spanish	English	Note
ya	already / now	Also used as “okay, got it.”
todavía / aún	still / yet	Todavía no = not yet.
también	also / too
tampoco	neither / not either	The “no” version of también.
muy / mucho	very / a lot	Muy + adjective: muy caro . Mucho + noun: mucho tráfico .
más / menos	more / less	Más espacio. Menos hielo.
ahora / ahorita	now / in a bit	Ahorita is famously flexible.
después / luego	after / later
aquí / allí / allá	here / there / over there
bien / mal	well / badly	¿Todo bien?
hoy / mañana / ayer	today / tomorrow / yesterday	Mañana is also “morning.”
pero / porque / entonces	but / because / so then siempre / nunca	always / never	Nunca already includes the no.
casi	almost	Casi nunca = hardly ever.

Ahorita is a lifestyle

Ahorita can mean right now, in a few minutes, or later this afternoon, depending on the smile that comes with it. If you need a real time, ask: ¿A qué hora, más o menos? Around what time?

A few tiny extras you'll hear constantly

- -ito / -ita makes things smaller or kinder: momentito, cafecito, abuelita. It is friendly, not baby talk.

- lo and la often mean “it” or “him/her,” and they sit in front of the verb: ¿Lo vio? Did you see it? La tengo. I have it. If that throws you, just repeat the noun. English speakers trip here more than on verbs — recognition first is enough.
- You'll hear se lo a lot: Se lo dije. I told him/her it. You do not have to build this yet. Just know it is not a new verb.
- se also shows up on signs: Se vende. Se alquila. Se habla español. For sale. For rent. Spanish spoken here.
- Me llamo is technically a reflexive verb. So is Me siento mal (I feel bad). Learn them as phrases.

CHAPTER 17

Panama Spanish, the local layer

You do not need slang to buy papayas. But a few local habits will make the country sound less like your textbook and more like the taxi.

You'll hear	What they mean
la capital	Panama City
el interior	the rest of the country, outside the city
chévere	great, cool, nice
¿Qué xopá?	What's up? (very Panama; you can just smile back)
pelao / pelaíta	kid / young person
la plata	money
un chance	a ride (¿Me da un chance?)
la bomba	the gas station (yes, also “bomb” — context will save you)
el abanico	the fan
la chitra	no-see-ums, the tiny biting bugs
diablo rojo	the old painted buses
el Metro / Metrobus	Panama City's subway and bus system
farmacia de turno	the pharmacy on duty that night
se fue la luz / el agua	the power / water went out
¡Juega viva!	stay sharp / watch out (friendly warning)

- There is no vos here (that's more Costa Rica, Nicaragua, Argentina). Stick with tú and usted.
- There is no vosotros. Groups are ustedes.
- Guagua is not the Panama word for bus. Say bus.
- English sneaks in: el parking, el mall, el email, okay. You are allowed to mix a little.
- People may answer your careful Spanish with English. That is kindness, not a correction.

A note you can leave for the building manager

Estimado señor / Estimada señora:

Soy su vecino/a del apartamento _____. Se fue el agua esta mañana (or: El aire no funciona / Hay una gotera en el techo). ¿Puede ayudarnos, por favor?

Muchas gracias,

CHAPTER 18

Phrasebook for a regular week

Keep this chapter on your phone. Read the Spanish out loud once before you walk in. Close enough is plenty.

Greetings and good manners

Spanish	English
Buenos días. / Buenas tardes. / Buenas noches.	Good morning. / Good afternoon. / Good evening.
¿Cómo está usted? — Bien, gracias. ¿Y usted?	How are you? — Fine, thanks. And you?
Mucho gusto. / El gusto es mío.	Nice to meet you. / The pleasure is mine.
¿Cómo se llama? — Me llamo...	What's your name? — My name is...
Con permiso. / Perdón.	Excuse me (passing through). / Sorry / pardon me.
Por favor. / Gracias. / De nada.	Please. / Thank you. / You're welcome.
Hasta luego. / Nos vemos. / Que le vaya bien.	See you later. / See you. / Take care.

When the Spanish is too fast

Spanish	English
No hablo español muy bien.	I don't speak Spanish very well.
¿Habla inglés?	Do you speak English?
Más despacio, por favor.	More slowly, please.
¿Puede repetir?	Can you repeat that?
¿Cómo se dice ... en español?	How do you say ... in Spanish?
¿Qué significa esto?	What does this mean?
¿Me lo puede escribir?	Can you write it down for me?
Un momento, por favor. Voy a usar el traductor.	One moment, please. I'm going to use the translator.

At the clinic

Spanish	English
Tengo una cita a las diez.	I have a ten o'clock appointment.
Me duele aquí. / Me duele la cabeza.	It hurts here. / I have a headache.
Me duele el estómago / la espalda / la rodilla.	My stomach / back / knee hurts.
Tengo mareos / fiebre / tos / náuseas.	I have dizziness / a fever / a cough / nausea.
Me siento mareado/a. / Me siento mal.	I feel dizzy. / I feel unwell.
Soy alérgico/a a la penicilina.	I'm allergic to penicillin.
Tomo estos medicamentos. (show the list)	I take these medications.
Tengo presión alta / diabetes.	I have high blood pressure / diabetes.
Soy jubilado/a.	I'm retired.
¿Es grave? / ¿Qué tengo?	Is it serious? / What do I have?
¿Cuándo vuelvo?	When do I come back?

At the pharmacy

Spanish	English
¿Tiene algo para el dolor / el resfriado / la alergia?	Do you have something for pain / a cold / allergies?
Necesito esto. (show paper or bottle)	I need this.
¿Es con receta?	Is it by prescription?
Una caja, por favor.	One box, please.
¿Cómo se toma?	How do you take it?
¿Cada cuántas horas?	Every how many hours?
Con comida / con el estómago vacío.	With food / on an empty stomach.

Eating out

Spanish	English
Una mesa para dos, por favor.	A table for two, please.
El menú, por favor.	The menu, please.
¿Qué recomienda?	What do you recommend?
Agua sin gas / con gas. Sin hielo, por favor.	Still / sparkling water. No ice, please.
No picante, por favor.	Not spicy, please.
Está delicioso.	It's delicious.
Para llevar.	To go.
La cuenta, por favor.	The bill, please.
¿Propina incluida? / ¿Está incluida la propina?	Is the tip included?

At home with a plumber, electrician, or gardener

Spanish	English
Se fue la luz / el agua / el internet.	The power / water / internet went out.
El aire no enfría.	The air conditioning isn't cooling.
Hay una gotera en el techo.	There's a leak in the roof.
El inodoro no funciona.	The toilet doesn't work.
¿Puede arreglarlo?	Can you fix it?
¿Cuánto cobra?	How much do you charge?
¿Puede venir hoy / mañana?	Can you come today / tomorrow?
¿A qué hora?	At what time?

Getting around

Spanish	English
¿Está libre?	Are you free? (taxi)
Al Hospital Paitilla, por favor.	To Paitilla Hospital, please.
¿Cuánto es hasta...?	How much is it to...?
Aquí está bien. Gracias.	Here is fine. Thank you.
¿Dónde está la parada del bus / del Metro?	Where is the bus / Metro stop?
Un taxi, por favor.	A taxi, please.

Neighbors and small talk

Spanish	English
Somos vecinos. Vivimos en...	We're neighbors. We live in...
¿Me puede recomendar un buen dentista / restaurante / plomero?	Can you recommend a good dentist / restaurant / plumber?
Está muy rico el café.	This coffee is really good.
¡Qué calor!	So hot!
Que descanse.	Rest well. (a warm evening goodbye)

Emergencies

Spanish	English
¡Ayuda, por favor!	Help, please!
Llame a una ambulancia.	Call an ambulance.
Necesito un médico ahora.	I need a doctor now.
Me siento muy mal.	I feel very ill.
Hubo un accidente.	There was an accident.
Policía, por favor.	Police, please.

911 works in Panama

You can dial 911 for police, fire, and ambulance. If you can, also tell someone nearby: Llame al nueve once, por favor.

KEEP THIS PAGE

Cheat sheets

The whole booklet in a few little boxes. Take a photo of this page.

Ser vs. estar vs. hay

Use	When	Example
ser	who / what / origin / time / job	Soy jubilado. Es martes. Somos de Ohio.
estar	where / how you feel / open-closed	Estoy en David. Está cerrado. Estoy cansado.
hay	there is / there are	¿Hay un cajero cerca?

Two pasts

If English can say...	Use	Example
I did it (and it finished)	snapshot	Ayer fui al médico. Comí pescado.
I used to / I was -ing	background	Cuando vivía en Florida... Hacía calor.

The sentence machines

Start with	Add	You get
Quiero...	a noun or a verb	Quiero agua. Quiero pagar.
Necesito...	a noun or a verb	Necesito ayuda. Necesito descansar.
¿Puede...?	a verb	¿Puede repetir? ¿Puede ayudarme?
Tengo que...	a verb	Tengo que ir al banco.
Voy a...	a verb	Voy a llamar mañana.
Me gusta / Me gustan...	the thing you like	Me gusta el café. Me gustan las islas.
¿Dónde está...?	a place or thing	¿Dónde está la caja?
¿Cuánto cuesta...?	a thing	¿Cuánto cuesta esto?
Busco a...	a person	Busco a María. (things skip the a)

Tricky gender, with the article: el día, el mapa, el problema, el agua, la mano, la foto.

POCKET PAGE

If you only carry one page

Fold this. Keep it in your wallet. Point at a line if the words will not come.

Spanish	English	Spanish	English
Más despacio, por favor.	A little slower, please.	No hablo español muy bien.	I don't speak Spanish well.
¿Me puede ayudar?	Can you help me?	¿Habla inglés?	Do you speak English?
¿Cuánto cuesta?	How much is it?	Quiero esto, por favor.	I want this, please.
¿Dónde está el baño?	Where is the bathroom?	Tengo una cita.	I have an appointment.
Me duele aquí.	It hurts here.	Se fue la luz / el agua.	The power / water went out.
¿Puede repetir?	Can you repeat that?	Gracias. / Por favor.	Thank you. / Please.
Que le vaya bien.	Take care.	Llame a una ambulancia.	Call an ambulance.

Ánimo. You've got this.

911 works in Panama. Say Llame al nueve once, por favor. Use usted with people you don't know well. Close enough is plenty.